Obituary.

George D. Lyon, son of G. C. and Mrs. Nannie Lyon, died at his home near Hustonville, Ky., Nov. 26th, 1891, aged 14 years. While it is appointed unto man once to die, all ages are alike exposed to the appalling event. The aged must die, but how often, alas, do the young die! Death is always a solemn event, but in the case of the young it is peculiarly solemn. George D. Lyon was in perfect health up to the time of his sudden attack by pneumonia, which manifested such violence from the beginning as to defy all remedial agencies that medical science could apply.

George D. Lyon had not only been blessed with a vigorous body, but with a brilliant intellect, quick in perception and retentive in memory and with marvelous exactness, could reproduce the images that external objects had impressed upon his mind. Moreover his manners and habits were such as would have adorned those of riper years. Manly in his bearing, courteous and polite in his relations to others, he won the admiration of many and the love of all his associates. Very naturally he was much beloved by his parents. His father looked forward hopefully to his promising manhood and fondly anticipated the pleasure awaiting him in realizing all of his hopes in the full maturity of an honorable and beloved son.

But "Death loves a shining mark" and from whose drawn bow the fatal arrow flew and found its victim in his manly form. In a few short days the end was reached. No human hand could stay the approach of Death or divert its fatal shaft from its chosen victim. Dear George, thou hast gone to the grave. When life's end shall have been reached we shall hope to meet thee in the rest of the "sweet bye and-bye," where tears are never shed and good-bye's are spoken no more forever.

ARTHUR C.

The county seat war at Springfield, Kas., has grown to such proportions that the governor has been asked to declare martial law. Sheriff Dunn and several others have been murdered. A number of arrests have been made, all the prisoners being members of the Farmers' Alliance. It is feared that an attempt will be made to rescue them. Alliance and People's party men say that Sheriff-elect Guyman will not live to qualify.

The ox in the Mammoth Store at Louisville weighed 2,054 pounds alive and dressed 1,408 pounds. It was divided in five parts and sent to the Orphan Asylums.

LANCASTER, GARRARD COUNTY.

—Ice, about three inches thick, was put up by several parties in town last week.

—The household effects of Mrs. Polly Singleton, deceased, were sold at auction Saturday. The proceeds of the sale amounted to $205.

—Communion services will be held at the Presbyterian church on the 5th Sunday in this month, conducted by Rev. Worrall, of Danville.

—In speaking of the future of the Central Record, Mr. James R. Marrs says in last week's issue of that paper: "My young friend, Mr. R. E. Hughes, will have the valuable assistance of Gen. W. J. Landrum in local, literary and general news departments of the paper, while I shall retain control of the political department and a general supervision over the entire work. Mr. John L. Anderson assumes the place of business manager and is fully empowered to look after and manage this very necessary part of the establishment."

—A. H. Rice has returned from a business trip to Lexington. Mrs. Thomas Wherritt is ill with the grip. Kirk Kirby has gone to Farmdale to enter the Military Institute. Sheriff Curt Robinson has about recovered from an attack of pneumonia. Miss Bessie Bush is visiting in Atlanta. Mr. E. W. Morrow was called to Selma, Saturday, by a telegram announcing the serious illness of his father. Policeman Ed Finey resigned his position and will leave this week for Indiana. James M. Layton and family will move this week to Cincinnati to make their future home. Mr. Malcomb Tillett and family have moved to the Price property on Stanford street, recently purchased by Mrs. Jas. Mason. Mrs. Mason has returned to her hotel property.

—Capt. Schley, commander of the Baltimore, admits that 38 of his men were ashore when the revolution in Chili was in progress, and the question is pertinent, what were they doing there at that time? Were they there on business, or simply as spectators, and were they in charge of a commissioned officer? It may be said that they had a right to be there, business or no business. Granting this to be true, if they had no business, was it the part of prudence to allow them to be there at a time like that? The probabilities are that some of them imbibed more bug-juice than was necessary, and in the exuberance of their feelings proceeded to give expression of their views, and thus provoked a difficulty, or acted in so boisterous a manner as to call for an arrest, which was resisted and a row was the result. Of course the honor of our country should be protected, but if we are to go to war, it would be well to adopt the motto of Uncle Davy Crockett, "Be sure you're right, then go ahead."

—A question worthy of the consideration of the public is, which is the greatest nuisance, the English sparrow or the inveterate whistler? "Annie Rooney" has been whistled to death and it is said that she passed to her long rest in San Francisco a short time since while the strains of that mournful melody were being gently wafted to her ears, at the close of a long and eventful career.

"Comrades," that once charming waltz song, that is supposed to have been sung and danced by two old crippled veterans while holding a camp fire of their own, has been worn threadbare, but still the whistler exists as a permanent fixture.

"Morn, noon and night, where'er he may be,

Fondly he whistles, regardless of thee."

Go where you may your ears are greeted by Annie Rooney and Comrades, Comrades and Annie Rooney, fired at you from every nook and corner, until you wish that "Rooney" had never been born and that "Comrades" had never entered the mind of its composer.

—J. R. Dodge has an able article in the Century on "The Discontent of the Farmer." Many reasons are given for the "ground-swell" that is moving the rural population," the chief cause being the depression of prices which reached its lowest level last year. The price of wheat in Liverpool was lower than it has been in the last century, while meats and other products have been somewhat similarly affected. As the farmer is the principal agent in clothing and feeding the world, it is somewhat natural that he should grow restless under what he considers an indifference as to his interests and seek to better his condition by all laudable means within his power.

The trouble, in some respects, is beyond the control of legislation, as the conditions of supply and demand must to a great extent control all matters of business character.

But if this were otherwise, the power to remedy the matter would seem to be in the farmers themselves, who could, by the immense majority of their numbers, select such agents as they thought proper to represent and protect their interests.

With hundreds of thousands of active, intelligent and patriotic men in their ranks, who would adorn any position in public life, the farmers, as a body, have generally contented themselves by simply selecting from among those who have so lied their suffrages according to their preconceived views and with but little reference to the interests of the largest and most important element of society. But politics is politics, you know, and the farmer must stand by his party, regardless of the price of wheat, corn, cotton or tobacco.

From the Land of Goshen.

—Mr. W. H. Taylor's distillery is rapidly nearing completion and will soon be ready for business.

—The Christian church at this place has engaged their former pastor, Bro. J. G. Livingston, to preach for them this year.

—Our school at this place, taught by Miss Tompkins, of Harrodsburg, was opened last week with flattering prospects of a successful term.

—Mr. Wm. Holtzclaw and Miss Nannie Beaumont were married in Lexington on New Year's day. We extend our congratulations to the young people.

—Miss Louana Dudderidge has returned home from a very pleasant visit to friends in Jessamine county. Mr. Frank Spratt and family have moved to Point Leavell.

—Our Sunday school meets at 2:30 o'clock every Sunday evening and is in a very flourishing condition, numbering 80 pupils, the credit of which is due to our superintendent, E. B. Beazley.

—Our popular agent at Gilbert's Creek Mr. Lilburn Gooch, is down with the grip. Miss Pattie Gooch has returned home from a visit to relatives near Stanford. Misses Kittie and Lena Palmer, two handsome young ladies of Point Leavell, are visiting Mrs. Thomas Traylor.

The Old Maids' Kick.

To the Editor Interior Journal.

STANFORD, Jan. 10.—We have always looked upon the I. J. as our friend and have received so many kind and complimentary notices in its columns that we are loth now to find fault with it, but injure done our sex in a recent issue, offering us a selection of young men to choose husbands from, coupling with the offer the inference that some of us might propose to some of these back numbers, is too much for endurance, and here we draw the line. Think of it! Oh! my! That any of us should so far forget or disregard propriety, solely upon the excuse that it is leap year, is unpardonable. But worse still, you go beyond that to deal us a greater injury to offer us your cheapest lot of bachelors to select from. Who of our sex has ever injured or offended you, that you doom to such misery as would be that of the wife of one of these? You do these men an injustice, too, for your readers would infer that they had made no effort to procure wives, when there is scarcely a marriageable woman of all us but knows by heart and can repeat the declaration of each one of them when he proposes, and so well imitate his manner and agitation as he delivers it, that our whole set can recognize the original. Perhaps you atone to them, however, in the remark that "any of them could be had for the asking." Well, we should say so! Lord deliver us! Now, if the reserve corps you mention is of the same material, please excuse us. We are not forward; we are not anxious; we are quiet—very quiet—as you know well, for your own animated ogling some of us have seen has never been exposed, and you know you do; and you stroke your beard, straighten your lapels and pull down your vest and beam very brightly and smile very complacently when you catch a courtesy from us. So, there, now, we will tell it, if you do not apologize, sir! You may put your lot of superannuated bachelors up at auction for some charitable benefit, or at some church fair, and sell them if they are in demand. Only one of them, we learn, has had an offer since their forlorn condition prompted them to advertise with you, and that was by letter from a distant State. That was a nice scheme of theirs to advertise with you, but we are not to be caught with flies.

HUSTONVILLE.

—Mrs. James M. Cooke is very ill. Uncle George Weatherford is quite ill of grip and complications.

—Mr. Cale Brown was arrested for selling liquor when he should not.

—Miss Lizzie Bogle attended a reception at Dr. John Bogle's, Danville, Saturday evening.

—Miss Minnie Dinwiddie will go to Stanford Monday to attend the Tate-Paine wedding. Miss Mattie Dinwiddie is with Mrs. Jno. O. McAlister, at Ennis, Tex. Miss Fannie Yowell returned to Bradfordville Wednesday.

—Tone Hunn got back from Adair Friday with three fancy combined geldings, which he declared a handsome addition to his already extra string. D. C. sold to J. W. Allen 8 $80-pound steers at $20 per head, 11 yearling sheep at $3.25 per head and 10 80-pound shoats for $25.

—A late letter from George Miller Givens reports Atlanta stables crowded with 2,000 cotton mules and horses and no buyers. Many mules sold on credit a year ago have been returned to the sellers, with declarations of inability to pay. The outlook is gloomy.

—A brute in Stringtown suburbs deserted his wife and children rather than provide food during the snowy spell. He was tracked to where he had left the ax, but no evidences that pensions are due some kindly beasts for having devoured the wretched, Judge Lynch should convene his court.

—A sleighing party had an up-set and break-down on the outskirts Wednesday night, which necessitated a walk in with led horses. After elaborate repairs, the same party confidently started to Stanford Thursday afternoon and made it successfully to the half-way mark, when like the old shay, the sled went absolutely to pieces, and the party got home a few minutes before midnight, horseback, using rugs instead of saddles.

—A "Wait and See," given at Mr. John Dinwiddie's Friday night, by our elder young ladies, to the local and neighboring gallants, who were left to find their way, is reported to have equalled if not surpassed the "Leap Year" given by the intermediates, of which we wrote.

—A skilled caterer from Danville prepared and served a magnificent ten-course menu, which the next essay will have to "wait" some while before it can "see" and go that spread "one better."

—Nearly every ice-house in town was filled with cakes varying in thickness from 1½ to 4 inches. The skaters were out in full force Friday and one of the most expert ladies had the misfortune to break through where the water was waist deep, carrying with her a little miss whom she was giving her first lesson. A rapid "pull for the shore" and prompt substitution of dry clothing brought both through without unpleasant sequel.

—Joseph Moran, of the Moreland neighborhood, died Saturday morning of pneumonia, after little more than a confinement of a week. He was buried at Hustonville cemetery Sunday at 11 a. m., with Masonic honors. Mr. Moran was one of our best citizens, an industrious, exemplary and prosperous farmer. Mrs. Moran was informed at the cemetery of her mother's death, which occurred Saturday night, and that her father's death is momentarily expected.

—Althea, the manly little 8 or 9-year-old son of John Steele Carpenter, was delayed on one of his errands last week till overtaken by darkness, two miles from home, when the 25 year-old filly he bestrode was suddenly inspired to inaugurate the new year with a record which will be unbroken at '93 and Gilpin's famous pace was a mere jog in comparison with Althea's, when Ed Stagg luckily seized a rein and "called a halt," saving rider and horse from injury.

Althea is satisfied that there is no fool like an old fool. "Why, Mr. Stagg, the old fool's 25 years old and who'd a thought of her running off?" were the little fellow's first utterances after his rescue.

W. P. WALTON.

Mr. CLEVELAND and Mr. Springer, Crisp's chairman of the Ways and Means committee, responded to toasts at the Jackson Banquet of the Business Men's Club of New York, when the former as usual had some of the true democracy that animated Jefferson and Jackson on tap, which he emphasized in a very strong speech. He urged not only a continued but redoubled warfare on the laws which grind millions of dollars from the people, not for the public good, but to benefit a certain class, that that class may in turn contribute to republican success. Mr. Springer on the other hand was for mincing matters, that is to reveal certain features of the iniquitous McKinley bill and put certain articles in the free list. He also stated that there was not the slightest possibility of a free coinage bill becoming a law during this Congress, nor any amendment to the existing law. We hardly believe the democrats of the country will submit to this wishy-washy policy, but will say with Mr. Cleveland, "They are prepared to act on principle and are in no mood for political maneuvering."

It is telegraphed from Washington to the Louisville Times that Senator Hill, on being introduced to Mr. O. O. Stealey, of the Courier-Journal bureau, inquired about Mr. Watterson and spoke of him in a most pleasing and complimentary manner. This is not very important, even if true, except to show that perhaps Mr. Hill has repented of his rashness in referring to a letter addressed to him by Mr. Watterson, written solely in the interest of harmony and good will, as impudent. Senator Hill may be a great man, and there is no doubt but that he is a democrat, but he didn't add to his reputation by his scornful treatment of a man who is his peer, if not his superior, in everything but practical politics.

The Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette, which, in order to boom its favorite, Foraker, for the Senate, said all manner of mean things against Senator Sherman, is now, since his re-election, endeavoring to cover him all over with soft soap and taffy. It expressly charged that Mr. Sherman had bought his seat in the Senate by bribing the legislators at least twice, but now it says, "He has lived and acted in the light of day and not a stain has ever sullied his public or private life." The C.G. is a good newspaper, when its news columns alone are considered, but its editorial utterances are not entitled to the weight they were before Murat Halstead was forced to play second fiddle and then sent off on a foray a "much needed rest."

In his salutary on taking charge of the Somerset Republican, Mr. R. C. Blandford lays down the law of no pay no paper. Stick to that, old fellow, and you will not only be happier, but richer at the end of the year. The credit system is the bane of all businesses, especially that of newspapers. One good paying subscriber is worth a dozen who have to be dunned, and then get mad when you present an honest bill. To h—alifax with such subscribers. They are not only nuisances, but downright drawbacks to newspapers.

SENATOR SHERMAN was first elected to the U. S. Senate in 1861 and ever since then, with the exception of the term as secretary of the treasury under Hayes, he has occupied a seat in the most august of legislative bodies in the world. The term that he is now serving does not end till 1893, so he is good, if he lives, to round up the century in the position he has so long and honorably filled. He is the ablest member of his party in the Senate and as much of a patriot as a republican can be.

The last issue of the Central Record, Mr. J. R. Marrs announces that he will devote most of his time to the Kentucky Homestead, which with the Boyles he will issue in Lexington. Mr. Marrs is a born newspaper man and his new venture will prove a paying one from the start. Our friend, Gen. W. J. Landram, ready and entertaining writer, will assist Mr. R. E. Hughes in the local and literary departments, which is absolute assurance that the work will be well done.

We always experience that tired feeling when we read Little Phil Thompson's periodical assertions that Hill is the coming man, and that Cleveland is not in it. He has been at it again and the newspapers have shown how anxious they are to kill space by publishing his talk. What does it matter, anyway, what a disgruntled, third-rate politician thinks or says about anything? Do give us a rest.

CONGRESSMAN CARUTH says that Congressman Montgomery is one of the finest politicians he ever saw. That may be, but no one would be reckless enough to call him a statesman. In fact it seems to be the pretty unanimous opinion of all who know the 4th Kentucky district representative that he is a very small potato and few in a hill.

The improbable story is sent out from Boston that a pensioner has voluntarily surrendered his claim because he does not longer want the assistance of the government. When such a thing happens, the sun will rise in the West and the moon change to green cheese. A great many of the soldiers went out for the stuff when they went to save the country and the most of them are still out for it.

THERE is a great deal of useless squabbling over the question of the State paying for newspapers for the legislators. The public money could not be put to a better use, as a majority of the members seem to be sadly in need of information of all kinds. Give them as many newspapers as they want and draw on the INTERIOR JOURNAL for the amount, if the State won't foot the bill.

CHILD responds to the demands of this country by stating that the assault in Valparaiso was a riot between drunken sailors of both countries and exonerating the police. Three Chileans and one American have been indicted. If this is the state of the case, and it seems natural that it is, the United States has no cause bill or for indemnity either.

For scintillating wit, comprehensive wisdom and penetrating satire, the editorial page of the Louisville Times is absolutely beyond compare. The old farmer seems to have taken a new lease of originality as well as of life. And, by the way, speaking of the Times, all of its departments are A No. 1.

The report of Warden Bolan shows that there are now 913 convicts in the Frankfort penitentiary. During two years 45 escaped, 54 were paroled, 45 pardoned, and 60 died. There are just 100 life prisoners. Lincoln county is credited with eight convicts, Boyle 10, Pulaski 13 and Whitley 11.

CONGRESSIONAL.

—Mr. Breckinridge has presented a bill to transfer the pension bureau to the war department.

—Mr. Goodnight has introduced a bill to put salt on the free list, but free salt won't save him. His only salvation is to have Montgomery, Ellis and Paynter join him and have Salt river declared an unnavigable stream.—Louisville Times.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

—A committee of 11, one from each Congressional district, and another committee from the judicial districts, will be appointed by the Speaker to suggest the new districts.

—The resolution adopted to supply each member with two newspapers failed, was reconsidered on motion of Tom Pittet, who said the constitution had been violated, and the matter was referred to the judiciary committee.

—By calling them some other name, both Houses of the Legislature has as many pages as ever, notwithstanding the constitutional prohibition. The auditor should refuse to pay them and let Court of Appeals decide the momentous question.

—The revisory committee's first report contained 200 pages of type-written matter and dealt with the subject of revenue and taxation. One of the principal features of the report is the new method proposed for collecting the revenues, which will reduce the cost thereof from about 10 per cent. to 3 per cent. or less. If this is practical, the body will not be charged with not earning its salt.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF STANFORD, KY.

Capital Stock.....$200,000

Surplus..... 18,500

Attention of the public is invited to the fact that this is the only National Bank in Stanford, and that the provisions of the National Bank Act, depositors are secured not only by the capital stock, but by the stockholders' liability for an amount equal to the stock, so that depositors of this institution are secured by a fund of $200,000.
Five thousand dollars of the liabilities of the bank are paid each year to the United States government and its assets are examined at stated times by government agents, thus securing additional and perfect safety to depositors.

This institution, originally established as the Depository of Stanford in 1853, then re-organized as the National Bank of Stanford in 1865 and again re-organized as the First National Bank of Stanford in 1882, has had practically an uninterrupted existence of 33 years, and been supplied now with facilities for transacting business and is probably better than ever before in its long and eventful career. Accounts of corporations, fiduciaries, firms and individuals respectfully solicited.

The directory of this bank is composed of

A Model's Fortune.
In the winter of 1870-'71 a great costume festival was held in Munich. Among the many beautiful women present was a Greek girl, dressed in classic costume of extreme simplicity, her only jewels being a single string of pearls about the neck. A Boston artist, then a student at the Royal Art Academy, who was present, says the Boston Transcript, was impressed with the classic charm of this virgin beauty, made sketches and notes, and at once set to work to paint the picture, but in vain; the time had not come in which to realize the conception, and the caucas was laid aside.

Two years ago, as the artist was returning from a summer trip to Europe, he was introduced to a Hungarian nobleman, who had been appointed consul, and with his family was sailing for New York. When introduced to the consul's family, a glance at the daughter, a beautiful girl of 16, brought to mind the Greek girl seen at the costume festival in Munich years ago; another look at the mother, and indeed it was the same woman.

An intimate acquaintance brought to light the fact that the Hungarian, then a student at the University of Munich, lost his heart that memorable night at the festival and soon after married the girl. A few months after the arrival in New York the daughter gave sittings to complete the picture. "Leukopus," which had been inspired by the mother years previous. The artist was J. M. Stone, of this city, and the picture was greatly admired at the last Art Club exhibition.

Humor in Wills

One might suppose, says the Chicago Herald, that will making was anything but a merry occupation, yet the drollery of the wills that some eccentric old fellows have left behind them could hardly be surpassed. Dean Swift could not have concocted a more bitter joke than that of the testator, who after reciting the obligations he was under to a particular friend bequeathed to him at the bottom of the first page of his will, 10,000—dollars, of course, thought the delighted legatee, but on turning the leaf the bequest was discovered to be 10,000 thanks. What a wet blanket for "great expectations."

Just as odd was the codicil of the deathstricken humorist who left to certain of his dear relatives "as many acres of land as shall be found equal to the area inclosed by the tract of the center of the oscillation of the earth in a revolution around the sun, supposing the mean distance of the sun to be 21,600 miles from the earth from it."

"Master," said he, "dinner is ready, and we all sit down. The colonel, like the private soldiers, had nothing to eat but parched corn."

"Oh, Tommy," said the little girl in awesomeness, "I know something awful about our Sunday-school superintendent."

"Tell me," said Tommy.

"Don't you never tell—but I saw him—I saw him laughin' to-day."—New York Herald.

—Georgia had four and Virginia one hanging Friday. At Homerville, Ga., the rope broke in hanging Wm. McCoy and it took the sheriff 1½ hours to get another one.

Little Things.

A good-bye kiss is a little thing.
With your hand on the door to go,
But takes the venom out of the sting
Of a thoughtless word or a cruel fling
That you made an hour ago.

A kiss of greeting is sweet and rare,
After the toil of the day,
But it smooths the furrows out of the care
And lines on the forehead you once called fair,
In the years that have flown away.

It's a little thing to say "You are kind,"
"I love you, my dear," each night;

But it sends a thrill through the heart, I find,
For love is tender, as love is blind,

As we climb life's rugged height.

We starve each other for love's caress,

We take, but we do not give;

It seems so easy some soul to bles,

But we dole love grudgingly, less and less,

Till 'tis bitter and hard to live.
